Ongoing Tunnel Construction

Boring of the two-kilometre tunnel for the Evergreen Line was completed in late November and construction of the concrete base within the tunnel is underway in Coquitlam between Robinson Street and Kemsley Avenue.

A concrete base is being constructed to support the Evergreen Line guideway inside the two-kilometre tunnel. Crews are currently placing gravel fill inside the tunnel working from the south to the north end. Once the gravel is in place crews will pour the concrete base.

The next step is building the wall that separates the in-bound and out-bound trains. This will be followed by the installation of utilities, trackwork and power systems.

WHAT TO EXPECT

- Residents living near the tunnel alignment may experience intermittent noise and vibration when the gravel is being placed and compacted within the tunnel and when crews pour the concrete base. It's expected that these activities will take approximately one month for the entire tunnel but the active work area will move northwards quickly and the work between Kemsley Avenue and Robinson Street should take about a week.
- Tunnel construction will continue to be a 24-hours-a-day operation, seven days a week.
- Crews are working to complete this phase of construction as quickly as possible to minimize disruption to nearby residents.
